

Increase in poultry production and income of poultry farmers, but be prepared for challenges: Shri Radha Mohan Singh

The Union Agriculture and Farmers Welfare Minister Shri. Radha Mohan Singh today addressed the 28th Annual Meeting of the Poultry Federation of India in Hyderabad. Speaking on occasion, Shri Radha Mohan Singh expressed his views in detail regarding increase in business, problems associated with farmers and traders, and assistance given by Government of India. Besides this programme, the Union Minister also addressed the State agriculture scientists. In this meeting the State Agriculture Minister and Officers of Government India, I.C.A.R. and Agriculture University were also present.

Regarding poultry production, Shri Radha Mohan Singh stated that during 2014-15, the egg production with an annual growth rate of nearly 5% has reached 78 billion egg production. The poultry meat production is estimated to be 3 million metric tonne. At present the poultry products export is around Rs. 768 crore in 2015-16. Along with increase in poultry production, there is increase in income of poultry farmers. Shri Singh said that there are also problems associated with this industry and the small and large farmers have to grapple with them from time to time. One of the issues is spread of avian influenza which is a serious impediment to the development of this industry. Despite this, timely intervention by the Government and efforts of private sector has enabled development in this sector.

The Minister said that poultry production is not only an important source of subsidiary income generation for many landless and marginal farmers but also provides nutritional security to the rural poor. However, compared to the organized sector, this backyard sector needs efforts at different levels to grow. The Government of India under its initiative programme of National Livestock Mission aims at sustainable growth and development of livestock sector including poultry. Under the National Livestock Mission there are provision for a number of poultry farming and allied activities. We also need to pay attention to the global market challenges. Shri Singh stated that there are possible solutions for meeting challenges, whether at domestic or global level. Government has taken several steps in this regard. Department of Animal Husbandry, Dairying & Fisheries has launched a dedicated website on Sanitary Import Permit for online receipt and processing of SIP applications for import of livestock and livestock products including poultry and implementation of Single Window System for online clearance of livestock and livestock products by all Animal Quarantine and Certificate Services Stations.

The Union Minister for Food Processing Industries, Smt. Harsimrat Kaur Badal and the Deputy Chief Minister of Punjab, Shri Sukhbir Singh Badal calling on the Union Home Minister, Shri Rajnath Singh, in New Delhi on July 15, 2016.

This Startup Believes Last Minute Hotel Deals are Ready to Take Off in India

Travel triggered the e-commerce boom in India, and companies like MakeMyTrip and Cleartrip are still some of the best known names among India's online companies. But as many have noted, this is a category where the top players are busy optimising the details of their business, and there is plenty of room for disruption. SavvyMob, which raised funds in January, is one of the companies that is trying to accomplish this. Its focus is on last minute bookings - this is a popular category in other parts of the world, and the category is still nascent, if growing in India. The concept is simple - while big travel portals like MakeMyTrip and Expedia can commit to a hotel to reserve a certain number of rooms for their customers, the hotel will typically keep a major portion of the rooms to itself, so that it can offer them via its own website or for walk-in customers. But this also means that at times the hotel will have unsold inventory, and in order to keep its occupancy high, hotels will be open to offering these rooms at a discounted rate. That's where SavvyMob - and others such as RoomsTonic, NightStay, and Staytonite - come in. Bikramjit Singh Sohal, the CEO and co-founder of SavvyMob, isn't the typical 20-something straight-out-college founder, even if his company wants to appeal to millennial travelers. Sohal was VP and General Manager, CNNGo, and worked as the General Manager, Asia Pacific for AOL. But when Gadgets 360 met him at a coffee shop in Bengaluru, he's just as enthusiastic about his company as the other startup founders who are holding meetings there. But perhaps unexpectedly for someone who just announced a round of funding a few months ago, he echoes the views of MakeMyTrip's Chief Product Officer Anshuman Bapna when he says that overfunding has been one of the problems the travel space faces now, and that discounting has been very unrealistic. "The idea is that if a hotel lowers its price point on MakeMyTrip or someone big like that, then they can't charge full price ever again," explains Sohal.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR
Fighting Dengue
Dengue, the world's most rapidly spreading mosquito-borne viral disease, is taking a far bigger human toll than was believed to be the case. Dengue is rearing its ugly head in India with new cases of infections and even deaths being reported from different States. According to the World Health Organisation (WHO), incidence of dengue has shot up 30 fold in the past 50 years. Achieving ideal environment for mosquito eradication involves resources, money, education, community participation, change in attitude and political and social will. Increased knowledge among communities to seek early treatment for symptoms can resemble those of dengue. It is both for the authorities and citizens to keep their surroundings clean. Unless citizens take the initiative to be cleaner, the municipal authorities are only fighting, rather pretending to fight, a losing battle. For many infectious diseases, good vaccines are available. Extensive research is on to develop a safe, efficacious and affordable vaccine against dengue too.
